LOS ANGELES, CA (October 2, 2006) - Fasten your seat belt for some pulse-pounding turbulence! There is no escaping the venomous bite of Snakes on a Plane as the year's pop culture phenomenon creeps onto DVD January 2, 2007, from New Line Home Entertainment. When deadly snakes are released onboard Pacific Air Flight 121, an FBI agent (Samuel L. Jackson; The Man, Star Wars Trilogy) must protect the passengers before they become the creatures' prey. Directed by David R. Ellis (Final Destination 2, Cellular), this edge-of-your-seat action-thriller also stars Julianna Margulies (TV's ER, HBO's The Sopranos), Kenan Thompson (Saturday Night Live, Fat Albert) and Rachel Blanchard (Without a Paddle, Road Trip). Buckle up for chilling DVD extras including audio commentary from Jackson and Ellis, deleted scenes, a behind-the-scenes documentary, a featurette documenting the film's fan-based buzz, the "Snakes on a Plane (Bring It)" music video and more! The DVD will be available at $28.98 SRP.

When an unsuspecting bystander witnesses a brutal mob murder, it falls to FBI agent Neville Flynn (Jackson) to escort his charge safely from Hawaii to Los Angeles to testify. But in an act of self-preservation, the crime boss in question smuggles hundreds of poisonous snakes onto the commercial aircraft in a crate, timed to release its deadly cargo halfway over the Pacific Ocean. Flynn, along with a frightened flight crew and passengers, must band together in a desperate attempt to survive the “flight of their lives.”
